Wan J. Kim

Wan J. Kim is the Deputy Assistant Attorney General for the Civil Rights Division, U.S. Department of Justice, who supervises the Criminal, Educational Opportunities and Housing and Civil Enforcement Sections. He also serves as a Commissioner on the Brown v. Board of Education 50th Anniversary Commission established by Congress.

Mr. Kim began his career at the Department of Justice through the Attorney General’s Honors Program, after serving as a law clerk to the Honorable James L. Buckley on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. Mr. Kim was a trial attorney in the Terrorism and Violent Crime Section of the Criminal Division, and then a Special Attorney to the Attorney General in the prosecution of Timothy McVeigh and Terry Nichols for the bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. After two years in private practice, Mr. Kim returned to the Department of Justice as an Assistant United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, where he investigated and prosecuted a wide range of criminal matters until he joined the Civil Rights Division in the summer of 2003.

Mr. Kim received his J.D. with honors, from the University of Chicago Law School, where he also served as an Associate Editor on the Law Review, and his B.A. in Economics, with general and departmental honors, from the Johns Hopkins University, where he was also a member of Phi Beta Kappa.
